Group Policy Management Review

Name: _____ Date: _____

1. What console do we use to change password, lockout and audit policies when Active Directory is loaded on the Windows 2008 server?

2. What can we type at the search textbox to enter the console to change password, lockout and audit policies?

3. What must be running to use Group Policy on a Windows 2008 server?

4. Group Policy was first used on what version of Windows servers?

5. Group Policies are linked to containers. What is a container in Active Directory?

6. Group Policies setting are contained in what?

7. What can Group Policies keep a user from doing to their client computer?

8. Larry, the network administrator wants to change the Domain's password and Kerberos policies per the customer's instructions. What does he select to edit these policies after opening the Group Policy Management console?

9. What will the network administrator type to use Group Policy with the PowerShell feature?

10. Inside the Users and Computers nodes of Active Directory, what are the three child nodes?

11. How can a Group Policy affect a user?

12. In order to have a Windows 7 computer as a management machine, what would the network administrator load to the local client computer for Group Policy Management?

13. What is the hierarchy of applying Group Policy?

14. An Organization Unit can block inheritance so therefore this container can deny a Group Policy _____ it?

15. To add local Group Policy to a Windows 7 client, we would logon to the client computer as an administrator and run what program to acquire a snap in?

16. What Group Policy node is used for applying a GPO to a computer based upon its hardware requirements?

17. What child node would we enter to setup a GPO to restrict a user from changing a client computer's System Registry using the server's Group Policy Management Editor?

18. To configure a Local Group Policy setting to a client computer, the network administrator needs to logon as what?

19. What policy controls the maximum tolerance between server and client computer?

20. How does a network administrator setup file redirection for a domain?